"This place is like a 5-star hotel. So nice to see people very well cared for." - Joel Tuminaro

"It's just gorgeous because you have the sunset every day directly out the window and you see the morning light as it comes up over the building lighting up the far banks of the shore and you can see the light move across the river." - David Porter

"Living peacefully at Asbury Solomons in a cottage with a great view of the Patuxent River. Asbury has a large pier where my husband takes our grandsons fishing and it's great for watching fireworks. A great place to live!!!" - Deena Schrauder

"The compelling reason for being here is that we can seriously age in place...it's more than a support system, it's your friends. If something happens to you physically in any way, shape, or form, they're here for you. When you are living on your own, you have neighbors and friends...but here people really understand what you are going through and what kind of help you need." - Anita Shepherd

"Great location and amenities. Nice thing is that it's a small community where people are easy to get to know and are friendly and helpful." - Nick Adams

"Just right for me for this stage of life. I don't have enough time or energy to take advantage of all the opportunities here but do as much exercising and activities as I'm able. And of course—the food! I cook when I want to, not because I must!" - Shirley Coops

There's no denying aging. We came when we thought it was too early, but it wasn't too early. We were able to make friends, to become involved here at Asbury Solomons. And we were able to become active in the Calvert County community, too. New opportunities to do new things, to visit Annemarie [Sculpture] Garden or the Calvert Marine Museum or the University of Maryland Biological Lab. We have many residents who volunteer there or in the local schools.
- Dick and Jeannette Findley

"Before moving to Asbury Solomons...we considered communities in Delaware and the Washington area. The lush settings and quality of accommodations of Asbury were clearly the best. And when we moved in, the warm and social welcome of other residents was an enormously pleasant surprise. Coming here was a great move." - Joseph Nelan

"We've learned a lot at these talks and discussions and presentations that are available here. We've made so many new friends. We still have our old friends, which is good. But we've made so many new friends. And I guess that was kind of surprising to me."
- Jim Shepherd
